Way back When

Years have flown on wings since the time as a small child you'd climb upon your grandpa's knee and ask, or rather plea for him to tell you about the times when he went to school. He always started the same; and though you'd heard it a thousand times, you always wanted to hear it again.

"Ah, when I went to school, that takes me back to 1906 when the first Rustburg school was opened. We didn't have all those fancy things you have now. We went to a simple four-room frame building sited where the old building stands now. It won't nothing elaborate or exciting, but it was sturdy enough to hold all thirty pupils and of course the faculty. Seeing as the only faculty we had was the principal, Mr. C. W. Poole. Now the first graduating class was in 1910 with only seven people. And among the graduates of that class was Lewis Pick or better known as General Pick, chief of the Army Engineering Corps. He's about the only real famous person ever graduated from Rustburg. But you better be getting on home now. No sense in getting your ma upset and worried about where you gone off to. You know you can always come back again. Bye for now."

The high school of 1910 was slightly more home-like than today's.

The student body of R.H.S. in 1910 consisted of only 30 students.

It was all worthwhile

The bell rings, and in an instant the halls are packed full of students. Pushing, shouting, shoving students. You wriggle your way through and now and then see a friend's face peep up above the crowd so you wave and carry on.

That's how it was every day. Because the building of the new school was still in progress, 200 new students and 22 new teachers were housed in trailers and every available space. In spite of the jammed classes and cafeteria and all the small problems that seemed to arise throughout the year, we knew it was worth it. All the new faces and friends, the added efforts and enthusiasm, the everyday victories over those terrifically hard tests and knowing you survived through a vigorous pep rally or just a simple walk down the hall, added up to a great year that made us say, "It was all worthwhile!"

Tired from a late night basketball practice, Tim Smith finds himself having trouble keeping his eyes on his chemistry teacher.

Devil Kim Honts looks on towards the game as Keith Dalton takes a breather.

A look behind the scenes

Everyone is dancing amid the lights and decorations. It looks great, but who worked so hard the morning before getting things just right?

A fellow student gets an A on a paper. How long did it take to even think of a thesis? How many hours of work did it take?

Many times a good thing is taken for granted; it looks so easy. Well, it's not such a breeze. The dances, carnival, ring dance, prom, and other occasions are planned weeks ahead of time. When you take a test or write a paper, you study and work hard. All the sports, such as football, basketball, track, and many others also take long hours of practice, lots of sweat and aching muscles. Even the teachers who seem to walk in class and hand out assignments right and left have homework of their own to do.

Once you look behind the scenes, you realize that all the work, frustration, the agonizing workouts, and the mental strain are all centered towards that one goal. Finally when the dance is over, the game is won, and the paper is turned in, the work that was once so hard doesn't matter much anymore because now you know it was all worthwhile.

As Karen Heale explains the trouble, Janet Eubank seems to say, "I still don't understand!"

The expression on David Roberts' face exemplifies his determination to conquer the barbells.

Freshman terror on the Court, Cindy Lewis demonstrates her ability to an Appomattox opponent during a 60-27 Hartsburg victory.

Hours of practice pay off as Tharmond Lewis ('85) hits a jumper from the corner in the Devil's blowaway victory over the Appomattox Raiders.

Keeping spirits at a minimum, students reveal mixed emotions at an afternoon pep rally.

Putting the toppings on his hot dog, Leavel Lewis seems to be oblivious to the events occurring in the cafeteria.

*S*tudent *L*ife

Impersonating Darth Vader, Arthur Jones strikes terror in the hearts of all students during the Free Fair assembly.

From the inside looking out, the new high school seems to be progressing.

"Rise and shine!"

"Good grief, why does she have to say that every single morning.

No one wants to get up at 6:00 a.m. in the morning, but somehow you do. You manage to plow through a bowl of cold oatmeal, get dressed and head for school. When you get there you have to practically bulldoze your way through the halls. In homeroom you have to fill out twenty different forms and then listen to the announcement of clear weather just when you were hoping for snow so you could get out of that analysis test. And so it goes, you laugh, work, talk, and rush your way through six classes just in time to change clothes and start practice. You finally get home around 6:00 p.m. and start on your homework.

Was it really worth it to get up so early and go through all that?

Yes, it was.

More than just fun in the sun

While many students and teachers feel that summer is lazy sun-filled days, many are busy working or at some type of other activity.

Some of the activities that students are involved in are Boy's and Girl's State, sponsored by the American Legion, Publications Workshops, and Leadership Adventure, which the Virginia YMCA sponsors.

For those who indulge in recreational activities, there are cheerleading camps, and various sports clinics. Many students play on recreation teams; others have part-time jobs to earn a little pocket money. Whatever turns them on, students find time during those three glorious months to do it.

Returning to the

"Hey, when did you get back from the beach?"

"About three this morning."

Back to school. It's the same every year. Everyone complains about having to get up so early, the homework, and the school food. But, deep down, nothing can beat that feeling of being with your friends again, or perhaps having a class with that special someone you've always admired.

This year, not only did the freshmen enter the high school, but the eighth grade as well. With the renovating of the middle school, the halls were even more crowded with roughly 1,200 students in a school designed for 900. It was pretty strange having the eighth grade around again, but after a while, the whole class made themselves a part of the student body.

The first few weeks of school

were unbearably hot with temperatures climbing into the high 90's every day. Even the teachers decided to give the students a break because of the weather.

Orientation assemblies were organized to give the newcomers a brief outlook on the many clubs and activities that the school had to offer. The SCA officers served as student guides, since all the classrooms had been switched around. Temporary trailers were on the front lawn to house the eighth graders, and all the numbers on the outdoor buildings had been changed. This created confusion for not only the new students, but the old students and teachers as well. It was pretty hectic for the first two weeks.

With the new school year, new students, old ones are excited about their new school.

Laughing in the sun, Tony Morrow has returned for his senior year as the same old T. Morrow, to Susan Hensley's dismay.

Concentrating on the outdoor scene, Alan Woody and Eddie Roberts find different points of interest during lunch.

Making good use of a fire drill, Alfred Hanks, Mr. Pettus, and Terry Jones wait for the signal to go back to class.

Was it worthwhile Devil?

Well, Old Devil, you're sure not the same Devil you used to be. Once again you possess the eighth grade you lost over eight years ago, and dear Mrs. Kelly is still cheering in the stands and feeding your little disciples. Can you believe that you're actually sending some of your students to Brookville Middle? But only so that the long-awaited school can be finished before the next decade. Oh Devil, remember the last time you lost a football game to Brookville way back in '74. Long time ago, isn't it? Things certainly have changed. Beating Brookville for four years in a row is certainly something to cheer about. Speaking of cheering, remember when Mr. Pendleton used to be on the basketball court arguing with the referees? Well, he's now top dog in the inner office, and young Haywood McCrickard had taken charge of "The Pit".

Look at the advancement of girls sports. Can you believe all the fans there are at a girls' game now! You've even acquired tennis, golf and wrestling teams. Devil, you're really going all out aren't you!

All these new teachers, and so many! But there's still the same ole' smiling faces too. Gosh, Dennis Campbell, a teacher? No, it couldn't be, could it Devil? Even smiling? Yes it is, it's Mrs. Evans, for goodness sakes, look at this new library she's acquired, looks good huh!

What, Devil? You say you've got a Vocational Technical School?

Where? Oh I see, it's not yours but the county's. How nice! And efficient! That should really help your disciples in planning for the future.

Devil, do you realize it's been ten years since the schools integrated? Look how much closer the students have become. You say they're all part of your school, Devil? There seems to be quite a one to one basis here among them. And look, they're even joking with the teachers, and the teachers are actually laughing! Say, isn't Mr. Steinapring, the Dean of Students from Brookville? Oh I see, Mr. Elliott's taken over the farm.

Hm, I see the students have gotten over Watergate. They're into peanuts now huh! Quite a shock to live through a political crisis such as that. And Agnew's resignation, too! Oh, I can see it now Devil. In a few years students will be looking in their history books at pictures of President Sadat and Prime Minister Begin embracing. If you can afford such books. This inflation, it's killing us all. Even our bubblegum money, and comic books. What? Who is Darthvader and John Travolta? What happened to Howdy-Doody and the Beatles?

Well Devil, it's almost a new decade, and you'll be moving within another year! So what's made this year so worthwhile? Oh? Well Rustburg, looks like the old Devil is proud of you. He claims it's the people.

After the first dismissal, students who wait for the bus often have to hear news and feel nervous.

While construction of the new school was going on, temporary trailers had to be placed in the front lawn.

Firm foundation of memories

I've stood here watching generations of children pass through my doors and oh, the stories I could tell about those long lost days. Days when children either paid the fare to ride the rickety bus, or because they didn't have the money, rode their horses, placing them in the barn behind the school. There were 100 miles too, with at least six holes instead of just one.

And on November days when the children would all come scampering out for recess, they'd head for the honeysuckle trees. There they could find shelter from the wind to eat their lunches, many wrapping their food in newspaper because paper was scarce during the Depression.

I was built in 1918; a six-room brick structure with an auditorium, library and principal's office. When an addition was constructed in 1928, the auditorium and library became classrooms while the library and auditorium moved to the new building.

Today I'm known as the old building and rightly so. But none shall ever know the number of children I've seen through the struggles of adulthood.

Finding out that high school was for her, eighth grader Donald Dyer walks on the grass instead of the crowded sidewalk.

Overlooking the new school, it seems it will be ready for many years.

Even the scoreboard has a big job to do in an exciting 42 to 40 victory over the visitors.

Running back Jack Smith is the star of the game, scoring the winning touchdown.

A homecoming to remember

As October approached, the students and the Student Council began preparing themselves for the upcoming Homecoming '78.

The first things that needed to be decided were whether to return the traditional parade or to sponsor a carnival and whether to have a band for the dance or a disco. The student opinion was so divided on both issues that a referendum was necessary to establish what the majority of the students wanted. After all the votes were tallied, it was obvious that the students wanted a carnival before the game and a disco for the dance.

With clear goals now in mind the S.C.A. began forming committees, and all the other clubs and classes began planning what money-making activity they wanted to do for the carnival.

A Homecoming to Remember

Homerooms started the process of electing court representatives and soon each class had two representatives. The seniors had three candidates for both King and Queen.

As the big day drew near, everyone became excited with anticipation. When the day finally arrived, enthusiasm and spirit were big words for the student body.

That night the crowd could be heard chanting, "Stomp Altavista!", and the team proceeded to do just that. With a halftime score of 28-0, the court representatives and their escorts were driven around the field in antique cars, courtesy of Lynchburg Antique Auto Club.

The big moment came, Johnnie West and Anna Mason were crowned Homecoming King and Queen. The ceremony ended with a song from the band, and the team returned to finish off Altavista with a victory of 42-0.

The next night boogie and fancy dress were displayed by all as everyone "got-down" to the sounds of Harriet Williams. The gym was decorated, and the strobe lights added to the atmosphere. With the last slow dance everyone headed home with many memories of Homecoming '78.

Students show their spirit to see which class will win the spirit stick.

During a basketball pep rally, Bob Rouse and Mark Eggen entertain the student body by acting as cheerleaders.

Expressing their enthusiasm, the students of the school cheered up for a victory.

Spirit of the student body

"You make us nervous sitting in your seats!"

This phrase from a cheer probably intended exactly what it says. Pep rallies are events where students are expected to really get rowdy and yell. One of the most important factors in any team sport is the spirit and enthusiasm that is evident.

Annual events such as the competition for the coveted spirit stick and the spirit chain sponsored by the NHS helped to give the students' enthusiasm a boost.

In efforts to add a little variety to the pep rallies, the cheerleaders from both squads racked their brains for ideas.

Terrell May tamed the ferocious Lancer horse (alias Gary Rakes), and Reverend Steve Farmer dropped in to give an inspirational speech to the football team while the basketball cheerleaders performed as "Pink Panthers"

For the first time since pep rallies were founded, Mr. Pendleton and the faculty members decided to make them optional letting those students who would rather stay in class do so. Yet through the sifting out of unenthusiastic students and new ideas, it was still the students' support that kept the teams winning.

Moments of worth

School: an institution for the teaching of children

This is true, but there's more to it than that. Students come for more than just learning. Socializing with old friends and meeting new ones plays a vital part in any school day. School actually starts at eight-thirty, but in order to visit with friends, students start arriving as early as eight o'clock. They always seem to catch a few moments between classes and after school.

In addition to socializing, school provides a chance for students to enjoy themselves. Assemblies which are held every few months offer a stimulating break from classroom routine. Entertainment ranges from concerts to magic shows to magazine sales programs. Pep rallies provide just the right moment for spirit to be released as well as all that energy that builds up in the classroom.

All these moments can never be recaptured, but are remembered as those times when it was all worthwhile.

The activities of a meeting space have been a great success since the OCA has been a great success.

Taking advantage of a chance to get at it was hard to see that the book was not a success.

Age old feeling

"You put your tree up yet?"

"Sure, since Thanksgiving?"

It is said as you get older, Christmas starts to become a routine, or even a task that families go through because it's an old tradition. But if you look hard enough, you'll find that the Christmas spirit is still thriving. As one student said, "Christmas is what you want it to be, besides Christ's birth, trees, and presents. It's basically the intangible feeling that's inside."

It was apparent that Rustburg students wanted Christmas to come. The HI-Y donated a tree for the lobby, which the art students decorated using their talents, and put up a "Peace on Earth" banner across the Guidance office doors.

While many of us were giving gifts and making lists for Santa Claus, the drama club and chorus were busy with preparations for the annual Christmas assembly.

Finally the last hour before vacation all the students pushed and shoved into the gym until every inch of space was filled. Skits were performed and the band and chorus entertained with various selections of disco, jazzed up carols, and other traditional Christmas songs. The last bell rang out a Merry Christmas, and the halls were emptied quickly as students rushed home to complete last minute shopping and decorating.

Assembling the way we were, the same piece of time with the same old spirit. Students share out only of Christmas.

Not all of the same old spirit. The Christmas spirit is still alive and well, and it's a great feeling.

Wintry weather at last!

Winter was slow to arrive this year as compared to last year with only light snow at first which usually melted the day it fell. But when it did come, it came with full force, closing school for five consecutive days. Eight inches of snow piled up and refused to melt. This was still on the ground when ten additional inches fell.

Students had a perfect opportunity to get in some sleigh riding, skating, and snowball fighting. Along with school closings, basketball games were postponed and postponed. Teachers and students alike enjoyed the break from classes and routine, but somewhere the beauty of the snow was lost when simple travel became difficult.

Ice storms also posed problems and left many people in our and surrounding areas without electricity. Life as we know it came to a halt as lights, televisions and even water became unavailable. But inevitably everything went back to normal and the somewhat hazardous holiday came to a halt.

While the trace of snow was not enough to close school or make it too difficult to make walk up to class.

Taking it easy for awhile

"What's for lunch?"

"The usual all-purpose meat patties."

"Sounds good doesn't it?"

Every year the same wise cracks are made about school lunch, but you still see the long line stretching into the hall waiting to buy lunch.

Lunchtime serves a more important task than just feeding yourselves. It provides a place to relax and forget about assignments for thirty minutes and talk to your friends or listen to the latest jam on the jukebox provided by the SCA.

In the fall and spring, many students find the lawn a perfect site to talk about the last Saturday Night Live or perhaps the last game. But no matter what the subject is or what is served, lunch is the most welcome time during the day.

Our unique style

Khakis, collarless shirts, and pleated pants were on call at the opening of school. As everyone arrived, they began to exchange information on everything from the newest movie to the best and craziest dance.

The favorite movie of the students seemed to be "Animal House" starring everyone's favorite star of "Saturday Night", John Belushi. Along with the movies, most students were trying to get the hang of the "Freak" the newest dance craze. Everyone dreamed of "freaking out."

Dancing, movies and clothes weren't the only things that went through trends. The language of the students varied from group to group, but these were several sayings that seemed to be universal.

"Your momma", a carry over from last year, was still the best comeback to any cut and being "used" by anyone was the greatest humiliation ever.

As winter rolled around the styles stayed basically the same with the addition of the "leather look". Boots, vests, and blazers were all status symbols of many proud owners. But the "freak" was no longer in, it now became the "rock" or the "spank", a rhythmic rocking back and forth, which, accompanied by the juke box, was demonstrated daily in the cafeteria by enthusiastic students.

Major trends come and go everywhere, but we have our own different style that makes us unique.

What's going on?

"Look! It's a bird, a plane ... no, it's Superman!"

Movie theaters boomed with business provided by many students who lined up at the entrance to see such smash hits as Animal House, Superman, and Up In Smoke.

Other sources of entertainment for many people included the new television series Battlestar Galactica and Mork and Mindy starring Robin Williams. Soap, which had a very successful season last year returned with more popularity than ever.

The Bee Gees had a very good year with such hits as Stayin' Alive and Night Fever, and it paid off when awards were given out. The group earned four Grammys which they well deserved. Among other musical hits were Chic's Le Freak, and Y. M. C. A. by the Village People.

Steve Martin's second album, A Wild and Crazy Guy, was released this fall. His appearances on Saturday Night Live have made him a favorite among many students.

The Superbowl, between Dallas and Pittsburgh was supposedly one of the best ever. The Cowboys were upset 31-35 in a very close game. However, due to the severe ice storms in our area which caused the electricity to go out, many people missed it.

Politics took an unexpected turn when John Warner defeated Democrat Andy Miller in Virginia's Senatorial race.

The mass suicide of the People's Temple cult occurred in Guyana. Over 900 people died in the tragedy.

Overall this was a very eventful year full of disco, comedy, science-fiction and excitement.

Turning in an excellent performance in this year's Super Bowl, Terry Bradshaw proved his value as a quarterback.

Six hours plus some

Even though people usually think of a school as a place where students sit in classes from eight o'clock to three, learning the three R's isn't the only activity which goes on. Numerous sports related events take place after school. There is almost never a day that one team or another is not practicing.

The Varsity and J. V. Football teams go through very strenuous workouts three to four times a week. Cross country, indoor and outdoor track teams meet daily. When weather is bad they run inside in the hall, stepping over, around and sometimes even through anything in their way.

During the winter season, it's virtually impossible to find the gym unoccupied. Between the four basketball teams, practice runs almost non-stop, sometimes as late as nine o'clock. Team members run offensive and defensive plays, shoot free throws and scrimmage each other.

Cheerleaders practice several days a week. Formations and stunts have to be perfected and new cheers learned.

Regular meetings are held by various clubs and organizations throughout the school. Most of these meetings are held directly after school closes and are very brief. Business matters are discussed and plans are made. Some special meetings, however, are held at night and last several hours, such as orientation by the Tri-Hi-Y, and taco feasts by the Spanish Club.

Three to four times a year, dances are held at school by different clubs and the S. C. A., such as homecoming and the spring dance.

Obviously school is more than just six hours of desk work. It's practicing, running, planning, meeting, and dancing; it's a place for students to spend after hours doing what they are good at and what they like. After hours is what makes those six hours worthwhile.

Illustrating the sporting events, members of the Senior Council Greg Saunders, Mar Mitchell and Tera Franklin try to persuade Mrs. Davis to go along with their idea.

SACRIFICES

Why would someone sacrifice I Love Lucy and Bugs Bunny for four years, probably to do something they enjoy better than watching TV. As a distance runner, Lisa Dehart runs every day after school, which has paid off in numerous records at school and the surrounding community. She has competed in Oregon and the ten-miler among numerous other races. Lisa hopes to compete in college perhaps at Lynchburg College where she will at last be able to compete with girls.

Reaping the benefits of being members of the Spanish Club, Anne Ware and Susan Lashford enjoy a taco feast.

Anticipating the move, Valerie Cunningham prepares herself for the return in a 2-0 win over West Campbell.

Before the game, fans get a glimpse of the game as they watch the game.

"Go Red!"

"Come on Devils!"

Sitting on the cold, hard bleacher your screams blend in with all the other shouts. All the fans seem as one, rooting for the players, cheering them on. Down on the field, the players worry, concentrate and fight with all they've got to win.

Inside the gymnasium, everyone seems to be packed together. It's hot and stuffy, but the fast-moving excitement is in the air. Tension mounts as the clock runs down and you wait for the winning basket!

All the worry and work that goes into one night's game builds up and finally ends. As the lights go out and everyone pours out into the cold night air as they leave for home, they know that whether it was a victory or defeat, it was somehow worthwhile.

Devils surprise district

Before the season started, no one outside of Rustburg thought that the Devils would finish above the break-even mark. Although Rustburg could not capture the Seminole District title for the fourth straight year, the Devils displayed such a powerful defense and explosive offense that everyone who watched a varsity football game this season could not help but marvel at this team that lost over 75% of its starters to graduation last year. Back was a young team that Coach Ray Wade called, "The most together group of guys I have ever coached."

Excitement ran high in the Red Devil buses on the way to Jefferson Forest for the opening game of the 1978 season. After a scoreless first half the Devils and Thurmond Lewis came alive, roaring to a decisive 22-0 win. Lewis finished with 153 yards rushing, while John Hirtz, Tony Perrow, and Art Jones had six solo tackles each.

Overconfidence caused a narrow victory the following week against the Liberty Minutemen. The Devils lacked enthusiasm through the first three quarters, scoring only one touchdown and leading 6-0.

But when the Minutemen scored a touchdown and added the conversion with five minutes left in the ball game, the Red Devil offense stormed down the field to score and win, 12-7, with 1:25 remaining.

Then came Appomattox, with the Raiders heavily favored to polish off the "struggling" Red Devils. Many supposedly loyal Rustburg fans began streaming for the exits after the Devils fell behind 6-19 with a little over five minutes left to play. But Perrow streamed through the Appomattox line to block a Freddie Mitchell punt and Lewis fell on the football in the end zone to pull to within five. After that the defense held the Raiders on downs. The Devil offense went fifty yards in one play on a bomb from Ken Anthony to Mike Payne and took the lead for good 20-19.

The tightest game of the season found the Devils lacking. After fighting to a 12-0 lead over Amherst, the Devil defense folded, and the Lancers took a 12-14 victory away from Rustburg Stadium.

Coming back against "push-over" Gretna was not as simple as it seemed. An inspired Hawk team

Rustburg did not give up. Winning the remaining three games would give the Devils a good chance of tying for the district title. Nelson County fell to the Devils 48-0 behind a good defensive effort and the running of Lewis and Arch-rival Brookville was scheduled for the closing game. Across the county, league leading Appomattox faced Amherst in a game that would decide the final standings in the Seminole District. If the Devils could beat Brookville and Amherst could upset Appomattox, then Rustburg would once again hold a part of the title. Rustburg narrowly defeated Brookville 6-2 in exciting fashion. Dead-locked 0-0 after three periods of play, the Devils scored on Kenny Jones' twenty yard run. Later, the Devils elected to snap the ball out of the endzone for a safety rather than risk a possible blocked punt, making the score 6-2. The defense then smothered Brookville's ground and air attack, and the Devils held on for their seventh win of the season against three losses. Amherst, however, could not knock off Appomattox, losing 23-21, and the Devils had to settle for a second place finish in the district standings.

than you think

Being a cheerleader takes more than a cute smile, loud voice, and sexy legs. Cheerleaders are the core of enthusiasm and spirit, not only at football games but throughout the school as well. Who do you think decorated lockers, locker rooms, and made buttons for students to wear? Certainly not the coaches!

The varsity cheerleaders plan all of the pep rallies, that are supposed to get students "bred up" for the games. Remember Reverend Steve Farmer, and the Amherst Lancer home whom Terrell May, alias "Wild Bill" so bravely tamed? Well, these crazy schemes were thought up by the cheerleaders.

Who were responsible for taking students' money at the Homecoming carnival? The J.V. cheerleaders, of course. They cheered diligently for three hours just to make money. Who else would be that dedicated?

Cheerleaders just like any other athlete have to dedicate time, energy, and plenty of effort from the time they try out until the end of the season. They must pass four subjects each quarter to be able to cheer at the games, and display good manners at all times during school and in public. Our cheerleaders not only displayed punk and spirit, but good manners as well.

Hope for Future Teams

If the J.V. Football team is any indication of what 1982's varsity team will be, the Seminole District had better look out! This year's young gridders compiled an impressive 5-3 record against teams that were usually quite a bit bigger and faster. The J.V. Football season also developed quite a bit of promising talent that will be put to use in the next few years on the varsity level.

Led by the strong right arm of quarterback Mitch Stone, the Baby Devils won their opening two games against Liberty, 14-0, and Appomattox, 12-0, showing spirit and determination. But overconfidence proved to be the determining factor in a disappointing 0-21 loss to the Amherst Lancers.

Stopping Gretna, 18-6, the Devils were led by leading tackler Lincoln Wood and a balanced offense. Back-up quarterback Kevin Markham came in after Stone was injured to throw two touchdown passes against William Campbell, but suffered a 14-26 loss.

Behind an all out offensive effort that totalled seventy points in two games, the Baby Devils walloped Altavista, 34-8 and stunned Brookville, 36-18.

Coach Robert Miller noted that although the Devils were young, small and inexperienced, they made up for their weaknesses with an aggressive defense and potentially explosive offense. Team leaders for the J.V.'s were Bill Scott, who led the team in rushing, scoring, and pass receptions, and Lincoln Wood, who led the team in tackles and interceptions. Along with Scott and Wood, Stone and Edgar Anderson were named Outstanding Players for the 1978 season.

Dodging Appomattox tacklers, QB Mitch Stone (#8) comes behind the blocking of David Smith (#83) in a 12-0 win over the Bulldogs.

Putting the hit on a tackler back, an ankle-rattled Knottburg player and Tony Hertz (#50) tied.

Headlines at last!

"I don't see how they can stand running every day, do you?"

All it takes is a little determination, dedication, and of course, one must enjoy it.

Cross Country is probably the most overlooked sport here at school, but this year with seven contending champions, they could hardly go 'un-noticed.'

Coached by Mr. Jerry Dodgson, the team was very close knit. Dodgson's enthusiasm, support and his enjoyment of the sport, sparked the team's drive and dedication.

In the district meet, out of 48 competitors, Keith Godsey placed third, with a time of 15:52, Juan Kimble placed fifth (15:54), Lindsey Barbour placed sixth (15:56), David Thompson placed eighth (16:32), and Lacy Lusk placed thirteenth (16:38). Lisa and Michelle Dehart, who had to compete with guys all year, placed twenty-third (17:41) and thirty-first (18:11) respectively, giving the team a first place finish.

In the regional meet, Juan Kimble finished ninth (14:33), Lindsey Barbour placed eleventh (14:36), Keith Godsey placed seventeenth (15:07) and Lacy Lusk placed thirtieth (15:30). Lisa Dehart finished forty-third (16:31) and Michelle Dehart, fiftieth (16:51) out of 59 competitors.

In the state meet, which was referred to as the "race of surprises," out of 124 entrées, Lindsey Barbour finished twenty-fifth (16:35), Keith Godsey placed thirty-eight (17:05), David Thompson, fifty-fourth (17:36), Juan Kimble placed seventy-sixth (17:55), Lacy Lusk placed seventy-ninth (18:05), Michelle Dehart finished with a time of (20:11), and Lisa Dehart (20:33).

Exhausted but proud after the cross-country season, Michelle Dehart agonizes over a long run.

Enduring by night runner, Lisa Dehart Dehart prepares to take on the cold weather.

Keeping in condition, Juan Kimble faithfully runs after school, instead of socializing.

Cross Country runners who ran in the Virginia Two-Mile were Lisa Dehart, David Thompson, Mr. Dodgson, Keith Godsey, and Juan Kimble.

Not quite enough to make it.

Returning to the '78 season with a new coach, several experienced players, two being All-District, the volleyball team had championship potential. But, somewhere during the pre-season, Fate took her course.

After making it to the finale of pre-season tournament by defeating three favored teams 3-0, 3-1, 3-0 respectively, the first game with the Lancers proved disappointing, as the Devilettes fell. In the next match against Brookville, Coach Milnes paced the Devilettes with a consistent 8 point serving game to a win over the Beas. The Devilettes put on a strong team effort to overcome the Gretna Hens.

Just when the Devilettes were getting together, they came against one of the best organized offensive teams in the district—Jefferson Forest. The Devilettes held out against a strong comeback bid to a 3-0 defeat. After defeating William Campbell, the team took on the two district leaders consecutively. Paced by Sandy Steppe's 18 points, the team lost to Appomattox 1-3. The Devilettes lost to Liberty in another close match not reflected by the two straight games defeat. Finishing the season with easy victories over Altavista and Nelson gave the team a 5-4 record.

Seeded fifth in the District Tournament, the Devilettes beat Jefferson-Forest 3-0, but lost in the semi-finals to top-seed Liberty.

Senior co-captain Sandy Steppe concentrates on a perfect set in the net over William Campbell.

Determination and depth

Determination and depth. Those were the main ingredients that the Varsity girls consisted of. A rushing press, dominating defense, and balanced scoring all combined, turned up a championship team and a 17-2 overall record.

Opening night of basketball season found the Devilettes soundly beaten by defending AAA State Champions, Heritage 66-44. Kelly Jones and Betty Jackson led the Devilettes with nine and eight points respectively. The Devilettes won their first three District games by comfortable margins over Liberty 57-38, Gretna 71-51, and Jefferson Forest 81-46. Freshman Clady Lewis and Jackson combined for 28 against Liberty, 45 against Gretna, and 43 against Jefferson Forest.

The week before Christmas brought another heartbreaking loss to Heritage 50-45 after a 4 point lead in the last two minutes, and a thrilling 2 point overtime victory over AAA R. C. Glass 50-48. Betty Jackson chipped in 16, and Lori Farris dominated the boards pulling down 15 rebounds against Heritage. Coming back from the Christmas holidays, Lewis pumped in 14, while Kenda Millner and Kelly Jones added 10 each in a 64-29 romp over Altavista. The battle of the "undefeated" was next as the Devilettes took on the Amherst Lancers. Good man-to-man defense, and patience on offense paid off for a 51-33 win. Lewis and Jackson hit 17 each.

Taking victories over Appomattox 60-36, Brookville 67-36, and Wm. Campbell 65-47. Lewis and Jackson once again led the offense with scores of 22 and 15, and 14 and 24, and 25 and 10 respectively.

Bad weather took its effect and the basketball teams played at random for the next couple of weeks. First, defeating Gretna 70-51 to start off the second half of the season. Betty Jackson battled under the boards for 24 points and 20 rebounds while Kelly Jones and Cindy Lewis fired up 16 apiece. Jackson scored 18 and Melva McDaniel 10 as the Devilettes defeated Jefferson Forest 43-28. Turning back Liberty 63-32, Lewis pumped in 18 while Jackson added 18. The Altavista game brought the accomplishment of the first girl at RHS to break a 1000 points career scoring, as Jackson hit 24 to reach 1001 total points.

Once again taking on the Amherst Lancers, a domineering press proved its worth for a 66-46 victory. Jackson tallied 17, Kendra Millner sank 16, and Lewis added 13.

Bad weather breaks, and few practices took its toll on the girls' usual form at Brookville, but combined experience and depth pulled out a 63-40 win. Lewis hit 18 and Jackson chipped in 16.

Playing a determined Appomattox team, the Devilettes pulled out a 45-36 victory with Cindy Lewis leading the way with 19 markers.

A 79-64 win over Wm. Campbell gave the girls a 17-2 record and the right to be called Champions. Jackson and Lewis sank 19 each, Millner added 11.

In the first round of the tournament, Rustburg put their five starters in double figures, Jones 14, Jackson 13, Lewis 11, Millner and Mitchell 10 giving the team a 66-41 victory over Forest. Liberty gave the Devilettes quite a shock with their stall, as the score was 9-1 at the half, Rustburg. The final score was 36-8, with Lewis canning 10, Jones and Farris 7. Meeting Amherst once again in the finals, the Devilettes pulled out a 50-52 victory to win it all. Jackson hit 20 and Lewis 16.

Size is probably one of the most important factors in basketball, and unfortunately this was what Rustburg lacked, and size was what everybody else in the Seminole District had this year.

Dropping a 58-68 decision to B. C. Glass, Biffy Lawhorne and Thurmond Lewis led the offense with 18 and 19 points respectively. Against Nelson, Lawhorne fired in 21, Lewis hit 16, and Greg Paige 14, in a 68-66 heartbreaking loss.

The game against Liberty came down to the wire with Lawhorne hitting 1 of 2 free throws in the last seconds, sending the game into overtime. Then with just 4 seconds to go, Lawhorne once again connected on a short jumper for a 72-70 victory. Lawhorne totaled 21 points, with Lewis canning 17, Paige 14, and William 'Peg' Martin 10.

Lawhorne and Lewis pumped in 15 and 12 markers in a 41-62 loss to Gretna. Then, Paige and Martin connected for 16, while Lewis added 15 against Jefferson Forest for a 64-49 triumph.

Hitting a slump, the Devils dropped the next three games to Heritage, 43-72; Altavista, 57-77; and Amherst, 43-65. Paige had 13 against the Pioneers and 12 against Amherst. Lewis and Ken Anthony sank 14 and 10 respectively against Altavista, while Lawhorne chipped in 10 against Amherst.

Comeback time woke the Devils, finding themselves taking the next three games by wide margins over Appomattox, 77-56; Brookville, 62-48; and William Campbell, 66-52. Four Devils hit double figures against the Raiders: Paige (19), Martin (16), Lewis (14) and Lawhorne (10). Martin sank 23 and Lewis 18 over the Bees. Paige fired in 24, Lewis 11, and Lawhorne 10 in the win over the Generals.

Once again, size was a big factor in the loss to Nelson 55-72, and Gretna who took advantage of costly mistakes downed the Devils 63-59. Lewis sank 18 while Martin added 12 in the loss to Nelson, Anthony and Lewis chipped in 15 and 24 against the Hawks. Lewis hit 20, Paige and Martin 10, to prevail over Jefferson Forest 52-45. # A thankless job

"How come we never get thanked?"

In the midst of all the excitement and thrill of the basketball games, many of us forget about the cheerleaders. We seem to overlook the fact that both the J. V. and the Varsity squad have to cheer for two games straight, without a break in between. That's a lot to ask of anybody. There are a lot of other "little things" that the fans don't realize. For instance, all the posters on the lockers and walls are made by the cheerleaders, and all of the pep rallies are planned and organized by the Varsity squad. For all of the away games, food and drink are prepared for the players to "munch on" on the trip home. In the summertime, the Varsity squad attended the annual cheerleading camp at Lynchburg College to perfect stunts and learn new cheers. Getting up at 5:30 a. m. to spend 18 hours a day in the scorching sun, they learned new cheers such as "We are CHALLENGED" and "We've got it under Control." They brought four ribbons home, two of which were blue. The squad survived a knee injury and a sprained ankle too, learning always to be present to cheer the Devilettes and Devils to do their best.

Although it's kind of late to be saying this now, all of us want to send to the cheerleading squad, "A big THANKS!"

Danger ahead

"Future terrors on the court" is the way one fan described the J. V. Girls' team. Coached by Mrs. Bonnie Jennings and Mr. Bill Herndon, the young Devillettes compiled a 10-0 season record. Averaging 62.3 points a game and holding opposing teams to only 24.2 points per outing was a big factor in their undefeated season.

Opening the season against the little sisters of AAA champs, Heritage, Sarah Jackson and Amanda Jackson poured in 19 and 18 points respectively in a 70-25 victory over the Pioneers. Pam Stevens added 11 points in the win. In the next two games, the J. V.'s defeated Gretna 64-31, and Jefferson Forest 73-19. Sarah Jackson had 25, Kristie Claybrook and Lisa Charlton 10 each against Gretna. Against Forest, the "Jacksons" poured in 17 a piece while Lisa Charlton added 12.

Rolling over AAA E.C. Class 69-14 Sarah Jackson pumped in 15, with Sherrel McDaniel and Pam Stevens chipping in 11 and 10.

Coming back from Christmas vacation, Amanda Jackson scored 20 points, with Charlton adding 15, and Claybrook 10, in a 13-32 win over Appomattox. Sarah and Amanda Jackson combined for 24 to defeat Wm. Campbell 46-15, then led the team to a 39-28 victory over Liberty with 12 and 11 respectively.

Winning the last three games by wide margins, the young Devillettes shifted scoring with Sarah scoring 15 and Amanda 12 in a 71-25 romp over Forest, and Lisa Charlton ripping the nets for 16, and Pam Stevens 10 in a 52-22 defeat over Gretna. In the last game of the season against Appomattox, the Devillettes, led by Amanda Jackson's 15 and Pam Stevens 10, defeated the Raiderettes 66-31.

With Sarah Jackson averaging 13-5 points a game and Amanda Jackson 12 future Seminole District teams better prepared for the terrors on the court.

The J. V. Boys' season could have been described as a seesaw with the sporadic play throughout the season. Lincoln Wood and Darin Paige were shifted back and forth from J. V. to Varsity, then Darin was struck with appendicitis, putting him out for the remainder of the season.

Paige hit 15 points, and Lincoln Wood hit 14, in a 44-52 loss to AAA E. C. Glass. The Baby Devils won the next two games with Wood hitting 13, Paige hitting 12, and Larry Calohan hitting 10, in a 44-33 victory over Nelson. Defeating Gretna 51-29, Paige scored 14 and Wood 12. "Look out! Boy, I almost ran over that girl when she stepped out from the bathroom!"

The sound of groups running up and down the steps and through the halls is an integral part of winter sports. Since the indoor track team has no other place to run, they must take to the halls as the cold and snow keep them inside.

The running and any other preparations took place with one goal in mind: a good performance in the district meet. Several of the members achieved this with a stand-out performance by Keith Godsey, Keith, being a distance runner, excelled in his events. He won the mile and placed second in the 1,000 meter. Kenny Jones placed fourth in the sixty yard high hurdles and Bo Lewis added another fourth place finish in the sixty yard dash to help the team finish in the meet.

In the Regionals only Keith completed, again he won the mile. He placed third in 1,000 meter. He advanced to the state competition where he placed fourth in both events.

Indoor track and basketball won't be the only official winter sports any more. Mr. Marshall Turner has been preparing a group of strong young men to compete in the district as a varsity wrestling team. The team started work last year lifting weights and building muscles. They experimented this year as a preparatory one for next year when they will have more adequate facilities. They wrestled against JV squads from other schools and performed well considering their inexperience and disadvantage of holding all their matches away. James Jones and Ronale Andrews were Turner's outstanding wrestlers and are his top prospects for next year.

Senior Jerome Elliott starts to hear the gun at the start of the 440 relay.

Pick up the pace sophomore Juan Kinsale races to beat the team in the two mile.

Down but not out, mathematicians C. H. Lawrence attempts to compute the status of a 37's maximum.

Great expectations

"Potential and desire

Towards the end of basketball season, when the sun starts coming out every day and it's warm enough to sit outside during lunch, everyone begins anticipating what their records will be like and who will be playing what position or competing in what event.

The baseball team under Coach Miller began "conditioning" in late January, while many members of the track team had been competing throughout the indoor season. Golf members could be found at any of the local courses almost every weekend shooting a couple of rounds with "tough" competitors.

Expectations were high during pre-season with the likes of pitcher David Brown, who was runner up to player-of-the-year in '78. The baseball team had plenty of experience returning. The softball team was looking forward to a good season with returning starters and a lot of bench depth.

Both the boys and girls track teams were anticipating record-breaking seasons, while the golf and tennis teams were working hard to gain experience and make improvements before the first matches.

For the second year the carnival was once again a success. Clubs, classes, and organizations went all out to make money for that certain project, ring dance or prom. But these groups don't always work to earn money. They work for other people, they work to further their education outside a classroom, and they work for the fun of it.

But clubs are only an extension of the classrooms. A class is a school in a nutshell; students, teachers, and mostly just plain work.

All of those last minute meetings after school and homework assignments that only Einstein could do seem impossible to cope with, but it gets done and finally the club's plans are all set and the homework is turned in on time. Then it's clear that it was all worthwhile.

"When is our paper due?"

"Tomorrow"! Oh, no, I don't even have a thesis statement yet!"

This problem is not uncommon to any English student whether they are in one of the composition courses or any of the other thirty-five different quarter courses offered by the English department.

The writing classes require students to write one of each type of paper such as argumentative, analytical and comparison. When a student completes one of these quarters, he has had plenty of practice in the art of composition.

The literature courses allow students the chance to be exposed to such greats as Shakespeare, Hemingway, and Steinbeck. Most students when asked say that their English class is "a lot more interesting than they first believed it would be."

English may also be used in a variety activity known as Forensics. The team was an upset winner in the district meet. The team was headed by Steve Farmer and Charles Rath who won first places in extemporaneous speaking and poetry respectively. Ann Ware added a second place finish to contribute points to the winning effort. The top three winners went to participate in the regional meet.

"Have you seen the new edition of Devil's Advocate?"

"Yeah, I bought mine this morning. It's pretty good."

The Devil's Advocate is Rustburg's school Newspaper. It's written and put together solely by the members of the newspaper staff in order to keep students informed about exciting events in and around the school. A new edition is released once every few months.

As the end of the year draws near, students become very anxious to receive their yearbooks. Only the final publication is seen by the students and very few realize the complexity of the work that goes into The Owl. Before the actual work can begin, ads are sold to surrounding businesses to determine the amount of money available, then each staff member is given a portion of the work with a deadline to meet which involves long hours of hard work and frustration.

In the spring, both staffs combine their talents to publish the Art and Literary Magazine which is composed of original work contributed by the entire student body.

"We're losing now, the juniors brought in ten dollars!"

The spirit chain, an interschool rivalry sponsored by the National Honor Society, is held every year the week before the Brookville football game. Under the leadership of sponsor Mr. William Skinner and president Sally Johnson, The Honor Society is made up of seniors who were either selected last year or this fall by the faculty. Students were chosen on the basis of academics, leadership, and participation in extra curricular activities. Juniors with the same outstanding characteristics were chosen in the spring.

Most NHS activities were held in the library, a popular place for meetings of clubs and organizations. The library, directed by Mrs. Eleanor Evans with help from Miss Ann Bragason and Mrs. Mary Goff, is a place not only for research and study, but also an occasional rendezvous if you're quiet.

Both the library and office are served by students who have an opening in their schedule. These students run various errands and do any other jobs that need to be done.

“Do I need math?”

Students see no purpose in math, but actually the uses are numerous.

If a student takes physics or chemistry, he will find out that Algebra and Trigonometry are half of the class and those students who go into economics will find that math becomes their livelihood. Even athletes need math; without statistics they wouldn't know the number of points they score or yards they gained.

Students, when they were asked why they took math and what they thought the purpose of it was, gave valid replies. Most students in advanced courses in math said they needed it for college and their future job. Scott Tolley and Pat Riley, both tenth-grade Geometry students shared the opinion of the advanced students while Phillip Dixon, a ninth-grade Geometry student wasn't really sure of the purpose of math, but he took it because he was pretty good at it.

The Math department offers nine types of math. Everything from basic arithmetic to the complicated world of analysis where students learn anything from addition to the length of a flagpole shadow. One thing can be concluded from it all, math is a necessity in today's world.

Helping out in math concentration, Rhonda Hines covers the match made on the previous page.

Taking time out from her math homework, Betty Jackson is relieved to see she only has two more problems.

Mind over matter

From the acceleration of gravity to the metric system, students are presented with new scientific facts daily in a variety of classes offered by the science department. While eighth graders learn about the three states of matter, freshmen observe the cleavage of minerals, sophomores dissect frogs and juniors discover the make-up of hydrochloric acid. Seniors who want to continue their studies in science choosing from advanced biology and physics.

According to Mr. Fletcher, the Science Department has extended its courses to include eighth graders. The addition has caused the department to run more efficiently and helped smooth out previous wrinkles.

For students interested in meteorology, there is the opportunity of joining the Weather Team where they learn how to interpret the readings they take from the various instruments both inside and out. They make forecasts and the local radio stations WTTX and WKDE broadcast them daily.

A revealing look

"Who won the battle of Saratoga?"

"What is the GNP?"

Questions, questions, questions, that's all these social studies classes seem to be comprised of if you just take a glance, but with a little deeper observation, the real social studies is revealed.

Sure facts are a major part of the curriculum, but this year students decided to go a step further than classroom investigation. With the help of some interested social studies teachers, a History club was formed. Led by president Tammy Free, the club sponsored a Christmas stocking raffle that was drawn during the Christmas assembly.

Members of history classes had the chance to visit the Appomattox Surrender Grounds to learn more about local and American history. At the same time with the help of Mrs. B. J. Reid, several students were busy preparing for a mock trial to be held in front of a real judge in a real courtroom. The lawyers John Hirtz and Anne Cardwell spent long hours on their planned defense of Percy Withers Snodgrass (alias: Steve Farmer).

(Continued from page eighty-two) The experience was an opportunity for all students involved to understand more about the judicial system.

With the learning in government and history classes, students have the opportunity to put their knowledge to practical use in the Student Council Association. The elected officers were in charge along with the help of sponsor Mr

Glen Reichard. Homecoming is the largest project of the SCA, not only must the dance and carnival be planned but also the entire halftime activities and court elections. The spring carnival and dance are also sponsored by the SCA.

Working and learning together was the theme for the various activities for the students in the social studies area.

Practical

"Oh no, the stitching's crooked, now I've got to do it over!"

For the students who take Home Economics, that situation is very familiar. Besides sewing, students bake, make crafts, and study the basic structure of the family unit.

All Home Economics students have the opportunity to join FHA (Future Homemakers of America). This club holds monthly meetings at which they pick the "Member of the Month", and choose Miss FHA of the year. As special projects they delivered over 5000 poison control stickers in the Campbell County area and also presented gifts to St. John's nursing home in Lynchburg over the Christmas vacation.

Each month the club members are assigned a project to complete and present at the next meeting.

During the year the club members also participate in various community service projects.

The club is also the one who coordinates the home economics department's participation in the annual home economics competition.

Remember the good ole days

"Well youngun, to the best of my recollection that Home Ec. Building is nearly as old as my own bones. Yep, it used to be a schoolhouse back yonder at Three Forks. It was known as the Gravelridge School to us. But then in 1932 it was hauled up and moved to Rustburg to be what you call a Home Economics building. Oh, so now you sew on those fancy newfangled machines and cook on electric ranges! And by the way, what is a microwave oven? Nope, we never had such outlandish notions.

I remember the very first instructor in that there building Miss Mac Brandt she was. But that was many years ago. Well, what ever comes to pass, my advice to you remains the same. Yep, I know it's an old cliche, but I'm old too.

In September 1987, the Journal announced a startling new series of public opinion interviews set to be carried about the economy of the future for 40 years.

ain't I? Just remember, "A stitch in time saves nine." Now what that means you got to figure out for yourself"

A familiar old scene

You pass me every day on your way to school in an old, ugly, worn, down building behind the student parking lot 1 is officially known as rooms 418 and 419 but better known as the agricultural building.

You'll probably find it hard to believe that once long ago I was a new building, put together with loving care.

You see, back during the Depression, the state contributed Campbell County funds to acquire the materials to build me, but not enough to hire men to do the actual work. So the boys in the agricultural class volunteered to do the work; Richmond sent down a supervisor and I was begun. To look at me now though, you'd hardly believe it. But I still have one consolation and that is all the memories of the good times throughout the years.

This dilapidated agricultural building was once built by the hands of boys within the class.

Business at its best

The commercial world would be at a loss without business students. After much training in typing, bookkeeping, shorthand, banking and general business, the students are able to fulfill many job require-

EXERCISES

The Future Business Leaders of America (FBLA) "have got it all together". They function economically by selling Krispy Kreme doughnuts and by having type-a-thons as money making ventures. During the type-a-thons, approximately 40 members of the FBLA got students to sponsor them, pledging a certain amount of money for every word per minute they typed.

Selected students from each high school in the state compete regionally in varied business contests. Students from our chapter travelled to Longwood and Richmond to see how they rated against other schools.

The first step in the process of developing a business plan is to conduct a market research. This involves gathering information about the market, the competition, and the target audience. The next step is to develop a business plan, which is a document that outlines the business's goals, strategies, and financial projections. The final step is to implement the business plan and monitor the results.

A little extra

The Voc-Tech is the center of technical learning for the county. Students having an interest in the courses offered take a three-hour lesson in their preferred curriculum. They may choose from courses such as Brick Masonry, Nurses Aide, Electronics, Printing and Drafting plus many more.

The training is quite unique compared to the normal lecture-type classroom. Students are given a chance to learn first-hand the operation of machines and other necessary equipment in their field of study.

In addition to the technical training courses offered is AC-CENT for the gifted and talented students who wish to participate in English, History and Humanities in a more in-depth manner.

When asked what she enjoyed about AC-CENT, Terri Blankenship replied, "I really enjoyed the Humanities course. It was different from other classes I've had."

Blankenship is a student at the Voc-Tech. She is also a member of the AC-CENT program.

At Longwood University, students are encouraged to participate in a variety of extracurricular activities. The university offers a wide range of sports, clubs, and organizations for students to join. These activities provide students with opportunities to develop leadership skills, teamwork, and a sense of community. The university's commitment to student involvement is reflected in the many programs and services it offers.

Watch out from below!

Would you believe that students prepare for the business world as salesmen, managers, servicemen, etc. down in a hole? It's true—the DECA has to be exact. They gain experience by on the job training while attending school, earning as they learn. These students graduate with a salable skill as mandated by the State Department of Education.

DECA participates in many money-making projects. This year they sold hot dogs and chili at the Homecoming Carnival. The money was used for various social events such as Halloween and Christmas parties, a spring picnic and the second dance for Muscular Dystrophy.

Each year DECA competes in the District Leadership Conference, entering such events as Food Marketing Food Service, Apparel and Accessory and General Merchandise. First place winners go to the State Leadership Conference in Roanoke.

A taste of culture

Que pasa? (what's happening?)
Parler-vous français? (do you speak French?)

It seems foreign languages have different words for everything! Have you tried them? Students are offered the choice of three foreign languages; French, Latin, and Spanish. Primary emphasis is placed on grammar, vocabulary, and pronunciation, but the students are also able to delve into the cultures and histories of the respective countries. Students get Involved by singing songs and performing skits. The French club presented a comical skit during the Christmas assembly which depicted a typical Christmas in France.

Last year several members of both the French and Spanish clubs traveled abroad during spring break. Mrs. Jones and her troupe flew across the Atlantic to Paris, France, while Mrs. Graves and several Spanish club members toured Madrid, Spain.

A pair

This year we had not just one but two foreign students, Bonnie Bombeck and Paolo Emilis Galsler. Bonnie is from a small town just outside Amsterdam. She became involved in school by playing volleyball and joining Tri-Hi-Y, and she had the chance to view her "first football game ever".

Paolo, from Belo-Horizonte, a city of 2.5 million people in eastern Brazil, came to America to improve his English skills since he plans to attend MIT. His major interests, math and science, led to his schedule of calculus, chemistry, and biology. When he returns home he will start his senior or fourteenth year of high school.

Student Paolo Galsler, accustomed to the classroom, was at home.

Observing the early morning spirit check, Bonnie Bombeck was at home.

Where can fun, fantasy and history be realized? The Latin club, that's where. All Latin students have an opportunity to belong to this active organization, which is affiliated with the National and State Junior Classical League. A Christmas "Toga" party, held at Mrs. Amsler's house, featured "yummy" food. She added that the party was a little more subdued than its counterpart in "Animal House". A speaker from VES

Involvement and action are an understatement for the activities of the AFS (American Field Service). They sponsor foreign exchange students and American students going abroad. During the first part of the year, they sponsored Bonnie Bombeck. Her host family, Amy and Sally Johnson, found her presence a valuable experience.

Not just a pretty picture

Painting, carving and molding are only a few of the activities art classes undertake. Many students think that drawing pictures is all there is to an art class. Not true. As any art student will tell you, your drawing ability can be nil, and you may be a good art prospect. You could sculpt with clay, carve wood or soap, or even glue magazine cut-outs to form collages.

The various products of the countless hours of work put in by students can be seen at the Spring Art Festival. Senior students whom the teachers feel are worthy, have one-man shows. Art students also have the opportunity to belong to the Art Club. It sponsors the Art Exhibit and several money-making booths at the Homecoming Carnival, offering carnival attendants a chance to have their silhouette made and to create their own spin-art.

The club also offers members a chance to visit the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts.

Band Ten-Hut!!!

The commanding voice of Ric Nicholas along with the other Drum Majorette, Crystal Alfred, lead the eighty people that form the Rustburg High School Marching Band across the field. Under the direction of Mr. Perry Brice, the playing members of the band along with the three different corps under the direction of Miss Martha Wilson, won several awards in various parades. They won first place in the Appomattox Railroad Festival Parade and placed second in the Lynchburg Christmas Parade. Also Ric Nicholas, Sandra Dixon, and Donnie Murr were selected to represent our school in the All-County Band.

Members not only have the opportunity to belong to the marching band, but they may also try out for the jazz band consisting of eighteen members. Another band is the stage band which is comprised of mostly brass instruments, performing in school assemblies and at the spring concert.

Another side of the music world is the Chorus, directed by Miss Lois Taylor. The twenty odd members sing various types of music and perform dance routines. They entertained the youngsters at J. J. Fray with Christmas music and returned to perform in the Christmas assembly. The chorus attended a workshop at Brookville High School where they refined even their finest movements and will visit Washington, D. C. to see a real chorus line.

Tossing the ball around.

"This is going to be one of those days! After twenty minutes of exercises, I know I'll be too tired to even think of Phys. Ed.!"

P. E. classes provide a sometimes relaxing break from the every day classroom routine and also meet state requirements concerning physical education. Eighth, ninth, and tenth graders go to gym classes two to three times a week, and when they aren't in gym, they take courses in health, first aid, and Driver's Ed. Sportsmanship is also emphasized as well as good character qualities.

The P. E. students participate in organized exercises and sports such as calisthenics, and trampolining as well as basketball, volleyball, softball, etc. Students also learn new and unusual games like crib soccer.

Physical Education conditions the mind as well as the body for further growth, both mentally, and physically. In other words the goal of P. E. is to "get it all together" for the betterment of the students.

People

Watchin' her tongue Mrs. North Jones takes the pie (lunch) to her car to eat it.

When signing his milk, Terry Severman wonders how long he's got to finish his in 5.

As I walk through the door, I wonder, "What's it going to be like; cold or friendly?"

Someone passes by me and casually murmurs hi as he joins a group of friends laughing and joking. Yes, it's somehow different. There's a feeling of warmth and of oneness here. The empty and indifferent atmosphere doesn't exist. What makes it so special? The people! The people of Rustburg are its worth. Sure, it may be somewhat small and maybe it's not as prominent as other schools, but what really matters is what goes on inside. Students kidding around with teachers and teachers giving as good as they get, the steady chorus of "hey" and "how you doing" among friends, and especially the knowledge that the people are what makes school worthwhile.

Looking back over the years

Expressing his delight in the selection chosen on the job.

While fighting the rush between classes, Sally Johnson shows her enthusiasm at finally becoming a senior.

While Jeff Wade tells...

Crowded halls and lunchrooms, ceilings in the old building falling down, and the furnace out of order; Rustburg High School as we know and love it will no longer be after this year.

Ten days after we graduate, the old, back building will be torn down and along with it, countless years of memories. It will be the end of an era.

The tower, painted with the graduating year will no longer be painted. Last spring, some of us braved the height to deface the famous tower.

We are "the last graduating class of Rustburg High School" as it is now—and it's not easy! Responsibility feels heavy, but along with this burden we have some privileges; privileges that are as traditional as the '79 on the tower, such as breaking in the lunch line and parking in the senior parking lot.

This is the last year, the finale of twelve school years and the finale of seventy-two years of conducting high school on this site. There are no more years; no more chances to be champions; no more chances to do something next year. This is it! It went by so fast!

In an early morning meeting, before Kahan went down to Mitchell's, the two FBI agents, Charles and Laurie, discussed

Taking Charge

Seniors are expected to set an example for underclassmen. They follow through on their promises. Seniors do not like to admit it, but at least one senior to admit it.

Every senior has responsibilities, but the ones most noticed are captains of various teams, officers of clubs, and even club members. If everyone likes to admit it, at least a senior or even admires one, but look at their accomplishments! They're SENIORS! That's something to admire.

Career-Harness Racing

Wouldn't it be fantastic to be able to do something you love and have the chance to win up to $528,000 while doing it? Senior, Mike Patterson has that chance. He raises and is now racing harness horses. They are standard bred horses which can cost up to $50,000. Mike and his family are involved in breeding these horses and training them to pull a sulky which is a type of buggy. The equipment needed for this type of racing costs about $1500, but is more than compensated for by the money that can be won. Three generations of Pattersons have accumulated around $10,000 in prize money.

In order to race harness horses, Mike had to travel to Columbus, Ohio to take a three page exam to get his license. He says that right now it's just a hobby, but he intends to make it a career. "Good luck at the races, Mike!"

On his racing horse "Tina A Catherine" Mike hopes his skills will pay off with first-place prize money.

A proud record

The entry of the Class of '79 into the halls of RHS coincided with an upswing of the academic and athletic programs.

In the fall of '75 Rustburg won its first football championship. That winter, also, both the girl's and boy's basketball teams finished second in the district.

As sophomores the Class of '79 became performing members of the great team that represented the school. That fall the football team "did it again" compiling an undefeated record. That fall Betty Jackson made the sophomores proud by being selected to first-team all-district basketball team and Lisa Dellart amazed everyone by sprinting past opposing runners. The combined effort of all the athletes and forensic members helped give RHS the supremacy trophy.

As juniors they became important members of the sports teams.

The Devils football team did it yet "one more time". The Volleyball team was led to a fourth place finish by 1st team all-district Val Cunningham. Betty Jackson returned as a first-team choice. Lisa DeHart "kept on truckin'" and David Brown helped lead the baseball team to a close second place finish.

During our senior year, the football team finished second in the district and the cross-country team won a district championship led by Keith Godsey.

Looking back over the past four years the Class of '79 was a most spirited class for three years, winning the spirit stick the past two years and the spirit chain as sophomores.

What's Ahead?

As graduation nears seniors must make the big decision of what to do next year. Many will go into various jobs. Some will head to college while others will marry.

Those going into various jobs have had the opportunity of taking vocational courses at the Voc./Tech. Center. Students can choose from courses such as Child Care, Printing and Drafting. Many students plan to get jobs in their field of study while others were learning the skill for back-up purposes.

Many of the students who plan to attend college will try their first year at VCC. Others will head off to 4 year colleges. Wherever college bound students decide to go they will remain loyal alumni.

For those not college bound, some will settle down here, others will travel but whatever the class of '79 decides to do it will always be remembered as the last graduating class of old Rustburg High School.

End of an Era

After the grind of school work for eleven years, most seniors find that their senior year is the hardest of all. Academically, that is. For many, '79 is our last year together. So we have set out to make it worthwhile.

Like classes before us, it has been our duty to carry on the traditions of maintaining a winning season in sports and other activities. A certain pride can be felt if you have allowed yourself to become a part of the Class of '79.

Kathy Maxey found her interest in the language field. She took three years of Spanish and was a member of the Spanish Club and newspaper staff where she was inducted into the Quill and Scroll. She spends her free time decorating and selling cakes. Kathy plans to attend Lynchburg College and major in English.

Bo Tweedy found time not only for studies but a little football too. Bo played for a championship team and was voted to the Second-Team All-District Squad. He was a member of the state crop-judging team through the FFA. He will attend VPI and State next fall where he will study civil engineering.

Anne Carlwell was sports and club oriented. She played volleyball, basketball, and softball for four years and belonged to the Tri-Hi-Y and SCA where she served as President. Being a member of both the newspaper and annual staffs developed her interests in journalism which she will major in at UVA.

Gave Rafferty was mostly involved in one club activity or another. She was a member of the SCA, monogram and French Club. She became interested in journalism as a member of the annual staff and was Co-Editor as a senior. Gave plans to attend Radford College and major in Journalism.

Sandra Dixon is music and science-minded. She marched with the high school band for five years and represented us on the All-County and All-Regional bands where she developed an interest in the piano. She won several awards for her playing. She plans to attend Clemson University and major in Marine Biology.

Exactly what does it take to be in the Top Ten?

There is really no one answer to the question; every person appearing in the Top Ten arrived there differently.

Contrary to popular belief, making it to the Top Ten is not all books and business. As a matter of fact, almost every student was involved in at least three extracurricular activities and many times it was not too easy to keep that Top Ten status. Try writing a paper for English, studying for a test in government and physics, drawing lay-outs for the annual and attending club meetings all in the same night! Not too easy, huh? Well, that is exactly how it was most of the time. The Fve Emerson says her favorite pastime is sports. She was a member of the tennis team as a junior and senior and also a member of the monogram club. She hopes to work at First Colony Life this summer and will attend VPI and SU where she plans to major in business administration.

Karen Beale was mostly involved in clubs and organizations such as the Tri-Hi-Y, AFS, and French Club. She attended Girl's State in her junior summer and spent most of her senior year working as Business Manager for the annual staff. She hopes to attend William and Mary and major in accounting.

Greg Saunders played for the Varsity football team three years, two of which they won the district championship, and he played golf in the spring. He was Senior Class Treasurer and a member of the Senior Council. Greg will attend VPI and SU next fall and major in Business Administration.

Rochelle Martin loves outdoor life. Her free time is spent trail-riding in a jeep or going to the beach every chance she can get. She works at Nationwide Insurance Company as a receptionist and will attend CVCC for two years then transfer to UVA where she will study sociology or political science.

Pam Scott was involved in an unusual activity out of school. She modeled for Super Hair Swingers as a hobby. She was a member of the SCA, Senior Council and FBLA. Pam plans to attend Community College where she will study to be a systems analyst.

ten people pictured on these pages have a lot to be proud of.

All students agree that to be a member of the Top Ten gives them a feeling of accomplishment and a sense of relief to have made it through twelve years and have made it to the top.

Being a member of the National Honor Society is an integral part of being in the Top Ten. Several members were also members of the Executive Committee, and some were officers.

Hard work and determination put these ten people here, and now they are recognized and can be proud of their accomplishments.

Displaying the pomp and pride that is worthy of a Kelly girl like Ken Anthony shows his love for the school.

Showing how he...

"It sure is crowded around here!"

"Yeah, but wait till next year!"

For most of us, nobody seemed to mind the crowds, or the hassle of going back to school. Everyone knew that next year we would be in a new school, one that we could break in, so why be worried about this year? We were just right; not too old to have all the responsibilities or fears of being a senior nor too young to be considered the "underclassmen." We were Juniors, and we set out to claim our role.

I remember back in the fall when a lot of my classmates like Ken Anthony, Thurmond Lewis, Mike Payne, Steve Farmer and the rest of the bunch were roaming the football field. David Thompson ran cross country, Melva McDaniel and Kendu Milner started for the volleyball team.

There were others who were involved in different occupations such as bus driving, writing the Devil's Hotline for the Lynchburg News and participating in club activities. But nothing was as important as our togetherness, which contributed spirit and dedication to Rustburg High School. I sure am proud to be a member of this Junior Class.

A symbol of us and our class

"Juniors will report to the cafeteria Wednesday, October 4, after homeroom to order class rings."

"All right class, how many of you heard the announcement?"

"What announcement?"

All of a sudden it was time to order class rings, which to most of the Juniors was a sure sign that we were almost at the top. A person's class ring is one possession that every person treasures. It symbolizes that you have graduated, when, where, and your individual tastes. Juniors this year were able to choose from over fifty varieties of design, emblems, stones, cuts, etc. Ordering the rings was slightly complicated. We had to follow directions to a tee in order to receive them the way we wanted them.

"I can't wait till the ring dance, so I can get my ring!"

Creating a good feeling

Taking pictures is more than just focusing and pushing a button as junior Steve Farmer will attest to. Since Steve seriously began his hobby three years ago, he has taken approximately 6000 pictures. He has been the photographer for the Literary Magazine and Yearbook staff over the past two years and was appointed the County Fair photographer. Steve attended the Longwood Workshop during the past summer to learn more about photography. Steve has accumulated about $700 worth of camera equipment which he has paid for himself. He also has his own darkroom where he sometimes spends three and a half hours developing a roll of film.

When asked whether he was going to make his hobby a career in the future, Steve said, "No, I only take pictures for the fun of it; if a picture makes you feel good, then I know it's a good picture." He says he doesn't look for pictures with deep meanings or symbolism. A picture must have more than just good focus. It should create a feeling of happiness according to Steve's standards.

Keep 'em Flying High

Remember when you would fold pieces of paper into airplanes to throw across the classroom? Well, Darryl Tucker has advanced beyond mere paper airplanes. Darryl builds model airplanes which he flies by attached lines or by radio control. Darryl has been constructing airplanes for four years ever since his father handed down to him his model plane.

These planes are very complicated; they are built from a material called balsa and the wings are made from silk. Darryl owns such models as the L'il Satan, WW II ME 109 and Jr. Ringmaster. Depending on the size and difficulty, it may take from four hours to several days to complete according to Darryl. Some models are constructed to engage in battle and are flown by radio control. Darryl says the planes get smashed up but that's the fun of it. Not only is his hobby complicated, but it is very expensive. The engines are the most expensive part of building model airplanes. They can cost up to $72. Darryl is very enthusiastic about his hobby and hopes to increase his collection over the years.

Aviator Darryl Tucker attaches his flight line for the square part that will get his plane into the air.

Not just a 'middle class'

That tug with friends definitely helps. People take away the class and might the point for it.

In group I feel like I can rely on them in a program to take it up to the next level.

Remembering to be aware of the passing word, how I can be a part of it.

"The middle year drag?" A statement used very often to describe the so-called "non-eventful" tenth year of school, but this Sophomore class never suffered it. In fact the year whizzed by. Sure, every now and then we wondered if we would ever become juniors so we could order our rings and get them at the Ring Dance. Anticipation of next year was, of course, two-fold, not only will we be juniors but we will be juniors in a new school. But the looking ahead was only now and then, and we were constantly reminded in many different ways of our actual status.

The most obvious of all reminders was the Minimum Competency Test all of us had to take. Boy, were we afraid. Everyone kept telling us how hard it was. But after we opened the test booklets we realized that we didn't need to know all the dates in world history or all the math theorems ever derived.

Being the "middle class" wasn't easy but everyone must go through it, and we weathered it pretty well. People say it's dull but we got out of this year exactly what we put into it. A lot!

"Look out Seniors we're only one step behind you!"

A wet showcase

Almost everyone at sometime in their life once had a bowl of goldfish for pets. But how many have owned four tanks full of fish? Sophomore Gary Campbell does! His hobby is raising and showing fish. Gary took first place at the Campbell County Fair where he displayed an Angel fish that was eight inches tall and an inch wide. His four aquariums range in size from five gallons of water to fifteen gallons. Each one contains a power filter and must be cleaned once a year.

Among the many fish Gary owns are the Black Mollies and some Zebra fish, which sometimes jump out of the tank! Gary started his hobby of raising and showing fish four or five years ago and hopes to one day own a store of his own.

According to Gary there is more to raising fish than just feeding them. You must watch for any diseases among the fish and be careful to keep the baby fish separate from the others or they may be eaten. Gary says that his

A day of success

Having the experience of two years in high school gave the Sophomore class a little edge over both the Freshmen and the Eighth-graders; they already know what to expect from Homecoming. The tenth-graders, with the leadership of president Chris Dalton, had a successful sale of hot dogs for the Homecoming Carnival. The booth made a lot of money and a good time was offered to all by the various activities sponsored.

The Sophomores were represented during halftime activities by Teresa Childress and Kathy Anderson who were escorted by Sammy Dawson and Mark Epperson respectively.

The next night many tenth-graders attended their second Homecoming dance and danced the last slow dance ending Homecoming '78.

Getting there

Many Sophomores found that their year was not as quiet or uneventful as most people say it is. Not only did they have to take the state-mandated Competence tests, but this was the year they would finally get their driver's licenses.

Much preparation goes into obtaining a license as most Sophomores found out. They first had to take and pass a classroom course that lasted eighteen weeks. Then they had to complete a 15-hour course on the Campbell County Driving Range with an instructor and then they must drive in the city and county for two hours with another instructor. The waiting list was long for the Range and the road tests, but many Sophomores found it was worth the wait.

Turkey Talk

Displaying one of his turkey's raised from birth, Larry Calohan tries to conceal his knowledge of Thanksgiving.

The Thanksgiving turkey you buy from the store must come from somewhere, but where? They come from families like Larry Calohan's!

Sophomore Larry Calohan and his family have owned a turkey farm for sixty-five years consisting of about 350 turkeys. The turkeys must be fed 300 pounds of grain and forty gallons of water every day. Sometimes Larry has to get up at four A.M. to do this job, but only when he has to!

The Calohans purchase domestic turkeys from Harrisonburg and then sell them at a dollar per pound. According to Larry, they must keep the turkeys for five months before they are sold. They do most of the business during the Thanksgiving and Christmas season when they sell 180 to 200 turkeys, and that's no chicken feed!

Making the proper adjustment

Mary Mauer, senior, is one of the girls who is adjusting to high school life.

Enjoying her new life during lunch, Martha Carson is talking to her friends.

With a look of determination, Tammy Thompson is trying to make the most of her new life.

"Hey don't pick on us, we're not the youngest!"

That's right. For the first time in nine years our class is not the youngest. But being older than the eighth graders didn't stop the upper classmen from picking on us. We've had our share of teasing about our size and being sent to the wrong class at the beginning of school when we didn't know where anything was.

Being a member of the class of 1982 has not been an easy task. Adjusting from the oldest to an almost-youngest role takes a lot of time. But the transition was made in little or no time. The girls all seemed to find upper classmen for boy-friends, and the guys suddenly had crushes on the "older women."

The transition also means more freedom. Now we can roam about (in unrestricted areas) during lunch or just sit in the lunchroom and listen to the juke box, the best quality of high school (next to boys) according to Tammy Thompson, a fellow classmate. And who could believe the number of people in the halls, sometimes it's so crowded I'm tempted to crawl into my locker to escape the hustle and bustle.

"It's so new, but I love it!"

Freshmen fill the space

Being a Freshman and a high school student gives a ninth-grader a lot of privileges. Most freshmen took advantage of all the offers of activities that came their way and participated in many clubs and athletics.

In the fall seven Freshmen girls cheered the JV Football team to a 5-3 record. The team was lead by numerous older freshmen guys. Several ninth-graders were on both Junior-Varsity basketball teams. Many girls and guys contributed to both fine teams. Some Freshmen were members of varsity teams; volleyball, basketball, track and wrestling.

Many clubs had Freshmen paying dues.

Trying to figure out how to work his gym locker lock, Gary Thompson hopes he will be able to open it before P.E. class.

Broadened Horizons

Rocks, Romeo and Juliet and gym suits are the life of a freshman. Among the courses many freshmen take are the required ones; earth science, English, and physical education.

At the beginning of school, most freshmen looked at their schedules and thought, "Oh no!", but after they got involved in identifying minerals, and learning about Elizabethan England, they began enjoying their freshmen courses. Knowing about granite and William Shakespeare may not be the most practical knowledge, but it helps broaden the horizons of rising young adults and possibly leads a few students into the fields of geology and literature.

#1 Year

This year being the first year in high school few freshmen knew what to expect from homecoming. They only knew of years earlier. Inexperience did not seem to hamper them, they went all out and sponsored a bake sale for the Homecoming Carnival.

They elected Kim Taylor and Lori Farmer to represent them on the Homecoming court and they were escorted by Greg Gunter and Mike Farris respectively.

The next night some ninth-graders attended the Homecoming dance to round-out their first year's activities.

Twins IMJUS

Plotting schemes to pull on fellow students, Gene and Joey Banton use their own unique characteristics for their own amusement.

Walking down the hall you suddenly see a replica of yourself striding toward you. But its not really you, its your twin! This is the feeling that Freshmen Joey and Gene Banton get everyday. As identical twins, Joey and Gene look alike, but they don't act alike. Each twin has his own personality and opinion about being a twin. Joey expressed his feelings when he said, "It's neat, not everyone is a twin. It makes us something special." Yet Gene feels differently. "I don't like having someone that looks just like me." Although they are of different opinions both agree that as twins they are close friends.

Like most twins, they dressed alike. Both found this a drawback to being a twin. "Everyone always stared at us." Of course they played pranks that confused everyone as to who was Gene and who was Joey, but now they have grown out of that. There are some disadvantages and advantages to being twins, but wouldn't all of us like to experience the feeling of knowing someone who is exactly like ourselves?

A day in the life

Gosh, I've got only fifteen minutes to chat and maybe run over to the library to see that special someone.

Oh shucks, I only have two more minutes; I can't make it in time for homeroom. Morning announcements. Oh boy, an SCA meeting first period. Now I can miss that vocabulary quiz I didn't have time to study for.

Well the meeting was short so I still have to take that quiz. Let me see, I used to know what meticulous meant. Oh well, one wrong answer couldn't hurt much.

It's so cold in the gym, maybe we won't have to dress. Well they fixed the heat, and here I am trying to do that dreaded exercise, "squat-thrust".

Well, the hockey game is over with only one casualty, a giant bruise on my knee, given to me by some crazed girl goalie.

I finally limped here only to find that I have to identify rocks. I should have collapsed with my injury in gym class.

Lunch time and at least ten minutes in line; those seniors sure do make me mad breaking in line.

Fourth period geometry comes and goes pretty quick, hopefully fifth period will go by as fast. It seems I'll never learn those Spanish verbs. Good, it's about time for geography.

"Call on me!"

I know the capital of Columbia, wait let me think, is it Caracas or is it Quito or is it Bogota or is it....

It's finally 2:55, and I better hurry and dress for practice, so I won't have to run extra laps. Being a freshman sure isn't easy.

Making ourselves at home

Keeping it low with Lisa Grishaw. Her friend, Mary, is also a member of the exciting "us kids" group.

Checking out who's taking the lead in the "us kids" group. Lisa Grishaw is the one who's taking the lead.

Yelling out to a friend in the crowd. Lisa Grishaw shows the eighth grade how to "us kids" style.

"Up with short people!" From the minute we stepped through the door on the first day of classes, all we heard for about a month was "short people" and "kid" jokes. Being teased about our size and age came to be expected, but soon we were accepted as a part of the school and as a constant reminder of next year's new facilities.

We may be small in stature, but no one can over-look our spunk and school spirit. We put ourselves on the map by chipping in our pocket-change to win the National Honor Society sponsored spirit chain which made everyone stand up and take notice of "us kids."

A fellow classmate, Lisa Grishaw expressed the feeling of most of us when she said she "would rather be here instead of the middle school." Actually, being part of the high school came as a mid-summer shock to all of us.

Most of us saw this move as a great opportunity. We soon became involved with many aspects of high school life, athletics and club work being the main interests.

Worth a sacrifice

Even though the high school has much more to offer in the way of entertainment and privileges, the eighth grade had to sacrifice their year of being "top-dog". All of the classes in the school now except for the eighth grade had the opportunity to rule the underclassmen at the middle school. That's one of the times when you can be number one and still get away with goofing off. But, most eighth graders agree that they would pass up being on top at the middle school to be at the high school any day.

Not too old for dolls

Every girl had a favorite doll when she was little that meant more to her than all her other toys, but eighth grader Pauline Jackson collects dolls that are more valuable than just regular dolls. Pauline collects china dolls from antique and collectors shops located in Lynchburg. She also has a doll given to her by her grandmother which came from France.

Collecting antique dolls is more than just a hobby, many people invest fortunes into these dolls and many are on display at Museums. Pauline's collection of ten valuable dolls started three years ago when she received a doll for her birthday. She sometimes buys the glass heads and makes the body herself out of muslin, tightly stuffed with cotton. She says that she hopes to collect more valuable dolls in the future.

Collecting dolls is a lot of fun as eighth grader Pauline Jackson displays one out of her treasured collection.

Walking the dog

Sent off with her prize dachshund, Sir Herbert I, Marie Anstey is rewarded for her hours of hard training.

"Sit!"
"Heel!"
"Down!"

These are some of the commands that eighth grader Marie Anstey uses to train her dog. Marie owns and trains a registered dachshund named Sir Herbert I. Marie entered Sir Herbert I in competition at the County Fair and received a second and third place ribbon.

She has just begun seriously training her dog. Marie has read several books on the subject of showmanship and gained experience by serving as a steward; a helper to the judges of the competition and she hopes to send her dog to obedience school in the future. Marie is very enthusiastic about her hobby and firmly states that she will continue to enter into more difficult areas of competition.

Our first debut

"Is the S.C.A. going to have eighth grade homecoming representatives this year?"

"Of course, we're part of the school aren't we?"

Naturally the eighth grade was to be represented at the half time activities on homecoming evening, so the eighth grade was sent through the pains of nominating candidates. After voting on the two finalists, it was narrowed down to Becky Baker and Mary Jackson! Becky was escorted by John Blankenship and Mary was escorted by Curtis Jones. It was quite an experience for the representatives, for it was the first time in nine years the eighth grade was recognized during homecoming.

Unity in spite of confusion

Making sure all of his information is correct, Mr. Pendleton is sure about the details.

Despite the confusion and the new school, the faculty is working hard to make the transition smooth.

Trying to remember if he has forgotten anything in preparation for the football game, Mr. Pendleton is sure of all the things that will be done.

Last spring and summer when most people were glad to be out of school, the administration headed by Mr. Pendleton, was already planning for a new year. A year in which twenty new faculty members had to be worked in along with 300 new students.

The administrators knew that their planning would probably determine whether the transition would be a success. It had to be done, so they set out to do their best. They obtained five trailers and several new offices and cafeteria staff to handle the load.

It was rough those first few weeks according to Mr. Pendleton, who said, "The cooperation was excellent and the faculty deserves the most credit for making it work out."

The faculty quickly developed from two separate groups into one unified group. This group was responsible for the safe shuttling of 200 students to Brookville and for effectively supervising the activities of the other 1200 students that remained at Rustburg.

A faculty member's job is not an easy one, and this year certainly did not make it any easier, but the combined effort of them all made everything run as efficiently and as smoothly as possible.

The other side of teachers

Few students can imagine their teacher doing anything but giving tests or issuing homework, but believe it or not, there is life after 3 p.m. Many faculty members have special interests and hobbies that take up most of their time away from school.

If you take a trip up to Wintgreen in the winter, you are likely to see either Mr. Dale White or Mr. Lester Black challenging the slopes. If you were to go out into local woods anytime during hunting season you will be sure to find Mr. Earl Murray, Mr. Bill Herndon or Mr. Cary Lee trying to outwit the elusive "big game."

Not much further away from nature is the special interest of the Relchards. They love to go white-washing (travelling down rapids in a small craft). Also, with an inclination for the outdoors and getting away are Mr. James Teele and Miss Nelly Finch who love to travel. Mr. Jerry Dodgion likes to travel but not in the conventional way. He loves to run, which is not a well hidden secret.

With a slight connection to traveling are the interests of (continued)

Changing slightly to the more artistic side of life, Miss Martha Wilson spends some of her time designing costumes for play productions while Mrs. Julia Amster loves to cook gourmet food. Mrs. Jean Johnston had a very unique hobby; she is a former flute player for the Lynchburg Symphony Orchestra.

Couldn't do without them

"Where's the custodian? The sink is stopped up in the girl's bathroom and the floor is flooded!"

No matter what time of the day it is, the custodians and cafeteria workers are on call. They do their jobs sometimes twelve hours a day and usually six days a week. The custodian job is not an easy one, cleaning up after 1200 students every day could never be easy.

Mrs. Beulah Nowlin is probably the best known of all the custodians. Whenever something goes wrong or someone needs to get into a locked room they always call Beulah first.

In the lunchroom the best known is Mrs. Geraldine "Ma" Kelly. She and her crew of six prepare the food and take a lot of criticism in stride.

With the additional students, the entire staff still seems to cope with day to day tasks.

Looking around to make sure all the food is prepared for serving is Mrs. Audrey Charlton.

Adds the missing ingredient to the main course Mrs. Kathy Kelly hopes she hasn't added too much.

As shown on a landmark for townfolk and visitors alike, the Campbell County Courthouse occupies the same spot it has maintained for over a century.

Advertisements

Heading home to a full load of schoolwork, Scott Dawson uses a hand grocery after a hard afternoon of feeding.

Pennies, although virtually useless, have become a valuable item for many students.

Advertising serves to keep everyone informed about all the products offered in the community. Students here at Risling patronize businesses throughout the community and surrounding areas. After the games, students always head for the pizza and burger restaurants, and during the Christmas season everyone shops at the local department stores. Ads are a significant part of a student's life, and they are certainly important to us. Without them our yearbook wouldn't exist. To all the businesses and all the students: Thanks a lot!

FOREST ROAD AREA

The Old Forest Road area, once a small community, is now part of the city of Lynchburg and has since grown into a strong, thriving business area. It provides students and the families with businesses that have recently built up where they can buy the perfect car for their needs or land for their dream home. These businesses include Esteppe Oldsmobile, Village Motors, Virginia Ford, Hallmark Cards, Century 21 Realtors and Central Lithograph.

The Old Forest Road area is popular among students for the convenience of the shopping centers and also the fast-food restaurants which draw business to the area.

LYNCHBURG CITY

Businesses located in the area of Rivermont, Park Avenue, Pittman Plaza, and Fort Avenue are extremely popular among students and adults alike. When the weekends roll around, students usually go to the Pittman Plaza shopping center and other stores in these areas and spend their allowances and after the football and basketball games head for the restaurants.

The area of Rivermont, Park Ave., Pittman Plaza and Fort Ave. contains a great many businesses and provides the consumer with almost every product available. Students always seem able to slip out of school to go shopping during the crowded Christmas season to buy gifts for the one special friend. Thus providing one more excuse to leave school, the businesses are certainly popular with the students.

TRAVELING DOWN 29

The area of downtown Lynchburg has a variety of chain stores; several have been very supportive of Rustburg High School. Such businesses include First and Merchants and Schewels. Downtown contains many businesses which offer the services and products needed by local residents.

The 29 South business district is very familiar to many students. Route 29 South is a widely used highway and students are continuously traveling to and from school and various jobs. The businesses in the area are landmarks and are a part of a student's everyday life.

South-west of Rustburg in the far end of the county lies the fast growing town of Altavista. Although Altavista supports a rival school, it also supports Rustburg High School. The merchants of the town are as familiar to our students as many of the local businesses in Rustburg.

Concord is located right off State Route 460 between Lynchburg and Appomattox. It's the kind of small town where everyone knows and helps each other. The merchants of the area are no exception, they are familiar with the residents and give "good-friend" service. Car-

460 EAST AREA

Route 460 of Lynchburg is one of the most important highways in the city and is widely travelled upon. Although part of the area along 460 has been annexed, many Rustburg students who live off of 460 and in Thomas Terrace are constantly travelling on 460 to and from school and town.

Businesses in this area such as Truck Body Corp., Moore's Country Store, Warren's Service Station, Inc., Giles General Merchandise, Oxford Inn, Templeton's Market, J. D. Crance Co., Inc. and ACS Transmissions draw much of their business from the students and their families who traverse over 460.

The last words, the final look

You looked forward to a year full of promise, then with a turn of your head you look back to a year that went by in an instant. The 78-79 school year was short and sweet; by the time you had put away your bathing suit until the next summer, it was time for Christmas.

Everything was geared toward the fast and fashionable aspect, from discos to the Salt peace talks. Like the rest of the world, you danced, debated, and discussed the problems in our own little niche. You experienced the feeling of excitement and togetherness at all the special occasions, you worked toward your own individual goals; sometimes succeeding, sometimes failing. But with the last glance back, you realize that you're proud of the fact that you kept pace and that whether it was quiet or exciting, fast or slow, it was all worthwhile.

MC A President Annie Carlwell energizes the crowd to a fever pitch before the Free Jure concert.

Ignoring the distractions of the world, she reads a book. Senior Annie Carlwell is a dedicated student.

Unintentionally, she's already achieving. Her A's are proof.

... We made it worthwhile
